POETRY.

For the Boston Morning Post. ANSWER TO "AN OLD WIDOWERS PROPOSAL." To be again a wedded wife, I should refuse, although my Heart beats strong with love,

And in my breast "young" feelings move, Old Widower.

Although my hair is turning grey, Although my wrinkles deep doth lay, My "brilliant eyes" refuse to say I will consent,

You say your blind to all my failings, And will my mind woo, Knowest thou not, weak mortal man

The mind of woman thou cans't not scan, Old Widower. Life's evening you would with me pass. Ah! if you knew my mind, alas, Such proposals you would not often make,

To give me pain, my heart to break, Old Widower.

To frown upon thy suit would be Too much like scorn-and such as me Do not allow, feelings like those My breast to know, Old Widower.

To hang or drown may never be thy lot Yet in your lines you should not have forgot, That man is born to do, he knows not what, Old Widower.

You say you can live free, But you must recollect that though A widower you may be, To talk to widows such as me,

You must not take such liberty, for future, Summary of Foreign Intelligence .- N. Y. Star.

The following is about as good a hit at drunkards as we have seen for a long while . -

"Excuses for getting drunk .- The following are among the excuses which are made by the individuals when brought before the magistrates at the different police-offices in the metropolis, charged with being drunk in the street. Many of the excuses are made indiscriminately both by males and females :-- Met a friend-met my mother-met my sister-have been wounded in the head-had a child die-in very great distress-out of work-broke my leg in his Majesty's service-very old-an old sailor-an old soldier-been out of place a long time-just recovered from a fit of illness-been looking for work-had a little business to transact with a friend-just come out of prison, and very little liquor takes effect upon me-had my brother transported-my mother died-burnt outvery hungry-had a quarrel with my wife-don't know anything about it-just apprenticed a child-buried my wife-married the day before-been to the christening-been to a funeral." In short, it would appear

A new kind of mock silver, for plate, has been invented in Paris. A cover of this costs only six francs, and Louis Phillippe has adopted it for his service. Silver, it is thought, will now be melted down for this compointense sensation at Paris. As many as 100,000 troops are being collected in the environs in case of commotion. Among those who have volunteered as their counsel, and who are not members of the bar, are the astronomer, M. Arago, and the celebrated Abbe de la

A thing well done .- As a colored girl was passing onthe side walk, in Main street, a few evenings since, errying a small pail with milk in it, she was accosted by a whistle, or some such notice, coming from a young fellow, who probably considered that her color made her a proper subject of game. She immediately dared him to repeat the insult, and, upon his doing so, dashed at him the milk, which took effect in the most admirable manner, wetting him as completely, from his head to his heels, both before and behind, as two quarts of milk well directed, could do. She then kept her position until it was evident that her gallant assailant had nothing further to offer, and until the shouts of the bystanders had amply attested their admiration of her spirit, when she proudly walked off the field, leaving the dripping and crest fallen hero busily occupied in rubbing himself down. We have no doubt that the young gentleman's ideas, in regard to the propriety of insulting colored people, were very materially changed by this appropriate admonition .- Worcester Repub.

Witch Doctors .- In North Carolina there are several miserable pretenders, who find simpletons to credit them in their professions that they are witch doctors, possessing more than human ability. They pretend to possess the power of restoring to life in a given time a person who has died; and the corpse of a female, in Rockingham County was lately kept unburied in the house of a family of deluded wretches, for several months, with the belief that the witch doctor, under whose protection she had lest the world, would after a time cause her to return to life. - Portland Jefferso-

We generally most covet that particular trust which we are least likely to keep. He that thoroughly knows his friends, might perhaps with safety confide his wife to the care of one, his purse to another, and his secrets to a third; when, to permit them to make their own choice, would be his ruin .- Lacon.

Eloquence is the language of nature, and cannot be learned in the schools; the possions are powerful pleaders, and their very silence, like that of Garrick, goes directly to the soul; but rhetoric is the creature of art, which he who feels least will most excel in; it is the quackery of eloquence, and deals in nostrums, not in cures .- Ibid.

There is this difference between happiness and wisdom; he that thinks himself the happiest man really is so, but he that thinks himself the wisest is generally the greatest fool .- Ibid.

Extract of a Letter, dated Paris, May 5th, 1834, from George W. Erving, of Massachusetts, (late minister of the United States in Spain and Denmark) to a friend in Philadelphia

My dear—,
You may recollect that when, just previous to my last departure from Philadelphia, I explained to you the merits of 'Swaim's Panacea,' and attributed its efficacy principally to sarsaparilla, which I thought to be its basis; I at the same time mentioned that a celebrated chemist, of your city, had informed me some years ago, that he had discovered mercury, and latterly that he had found arsenic in this famous medicine. I was not, however, shocked by this information; I had only to transfer my gratitude from tarsaparilla to these more powerful drugs, acknowledging that they had completely cured the herpetic affection which had tormented me, more or less, for fourteen years; and which had resisted all the means, mild and violent, external and internal, which, under the recommenda-"BOSTON COFFEE HOUSE,"

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1835.

FOR PRESIDENT.

THARREN VAN BUREN. FOR VICE PRESIDENT. RESCRIARED VI. JOHN NOON.

The Bobster Humbug .- The federal papers have ffected to call the Baltimore Convention, composed of respectable delegates from all, or nearly all, the States, the Van Buren Humbug. What, then, should the Boston meeting be called, in favor of Mr Webster, the few names composing which were so ostentatiously paaded, for weeks, in the federal papers, occupying somethat more than half a column? What should the leglative convention be called, which was at length comcelled to nominate Mr Webster, because no other state the Union could be induced to do it, notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts, for months, made for that purpose? What nomination can, with more propriety, be called a humbug, than that in favor of which no one state can be procured with certainty, -not even the only most acceptable description, for it not only allows full state in which the nomination has been formally made? We have looked over the resolutions passed at the Boston federal meeting, and they strike as as a complete humbug. Indeed, we have been long convinced, question of chartering the U.S. Bank, was the first call themselves whigs, are the most humbug able of all animals. They seem even to delight in being constantly humbugged. The party should be called humbuggers.

The third resolution considers as "highly reprehensible, the interference of incumbents in office to control the elections," by assembling with others in a nominating convention; and yet the first and only nomination of Mr Webster was made by a convention, in which all were "incumbents in office;" and they were not even delegated for that purpose by any party, but were absolutely self-constituted. The whole federal whig party is altogether led and controlled by office holders; and there is no other common principle, in which this incongroous party is agreed, than that of love of office and power, and a determination to obtain them exclusively at all hazards, if possible, and by any means, good or

One recommendation of their candidate is, that he "has penetration to perceive the causes of existing evils !" If, in this time of incomparable prosperity among all classes, altogether unprecedented even in this country, he can perceive "existing evils" in our political affairs, it must be through federal spectacles, of immense magnifying power. But perhaps these very "existing evils" are, in their estimation, this same general prosperity; the present flourishing state of the laboring classes, as well as of the aristocracy. It is federal policy to make the rich richer, and the poor poorer ;- and it is a federal maxim, "that the government should take care of the rich, and that the rich should be left to take care of the poor."

In one resolution it is solemnly declared, "We (the whigs) act on public principle, and for the general good !" We suspect that the penman smiled, when he wrote this sentence. It is very easily said; but to make people believe it, who can can judge from facts instead of professions, will be found more difficult .-There never was a combination of men more complete- tatoes." ly and exclusively selfish, than the prominent members of the present federal whig party.

The fifth resolution is amusing; but it will be found, after proper comments and inuendoes, to contain much truth. "We ardently desire (say they) the return of constitutional times." This probably refers to the condemnation of the President by the Senate, without impeachment or trial, or without giving the accused an opportunity of being heard in his defence, a most outrageous violation of the constitution. Again, "We are weary of the violence, tumult, and corruption, which prevail in the land." By "violence and tumult" are probably meant their proceedings in the New York elections, &c., when the whigs took forcible possession of the public armory, intending to deluge the streets with blood, if the mob could have been stimulated to act as they were desired. Perhaps also reference was intended to the attempted disturbance, last year, at the Jackson meeting in Faneuil Hall, concerning the U. S. Bank, when the intruding whigs, who endeavored to create a riot, had their backs chalked, and were very kindly assisted out of the hall. The "corruption" spoken of, undoubtedly refers to the Bank, in connexion with some eminent Senators. Again, "We are weary of continued appeals, by the highest functionaries, to the passions of the people, against the laws and constitution." The reference here undoubtedly is to the panic speeches of the last session, the panic meetings, and pelitions, the panic predictions of great Senators, intended to operate upon the "passions of the people," and which time, as usual, has proved to be all false and unfounded. Perhaps some reference is had to the immense sums expended by the Bank, in circulating these speeches, and other electioneering documents, especially previous to the last presidential elec-

The resolutions are fifteen in number. One of their own papers justly and candidly complains, that they are "very long," and it might have added, very tedious and dull. But they will answer to fill a ditch, as Falstaff says, as well as better ones. They serve to fill the craving columns of the great federal papers. They are of very little importance, in any other

The Baltimore Nominations have been well received throughout the country. The democratic papers, with hardly an exception, have inscribed the names of VAN BUREN and JOHNSON upon their political flags, and nailed them to the mast. We rejoice to see the indications of unanimity which flow in upon us from every section of the country, affording the most gratifying evidences of the strength and incorruptible character of the Democratic party.

The following is coried from the Franklin Mercury, one of the most violent Whig papers in Massachusetts:-

"The New Post Master General, as might have been expected, has shown himself a thorough businessman in the discharge, thus far of the duties of his office. There is no doubt that under his administration

We have received No. 1, Vol. 2, of the Annals of Phrenology. This science appears to be rather in the wane - the practical jokes imposed upon some of its professors have shaken the confidence of the community in the belief of its correctness. question in which the party lines were drawn—the federalists supporting it, and the democrats opposing it .-This is the state of parties now—the federalists support the Bank to a man, and the democrats oppose it with equal unanimity; the former are governed by interest bills had an endorsement on the back, there was not the and principle, the latter by principle alone.

Errata.-There was an error in the last paragraph of the article in yesterday's Post, headed "Commerce and Revenue of Boston." It should have read--

The amount of revenue that accrued from January 1 to May 31, 1835, was $1,267,566. The amount that accrued during the corresponding time of last year was $1,232,642-increase, $34,924.

Yesterday, a State prisoner, by the name of Forjach, and about 18 others, in irons in the castle, and under sentence of death, having well matured their plot, suddenly rose upon their guards, overpowered the garrison, raised the drawbridge, and hoisted Don Miguel's flag. The Court also inclined to the opinion, that Brewer had not quoted the English law strictly correct upon the subject of intoxication being a valid defence, and he was, therefore, in spite of his legal erudition, convicted by the jury without their leaving their seats.

A Runaway Corpse.-On the 25th ult. a man named Patrick Corran, aged 22, a native of Ireland, while engaged in moving a large stone with a crow-bar, at Astor's building, slipped and fell with his head with Harriet B. Witt. so much force against the stone that he fractured his skull, and his brains protruded through the orifice. He was carried to the City Hospital, where notwithstanding surgical aid was applied, and all the skill of the faculty exerted, he died on Saturday morning, at two o'clock. His friends expressing an anxiety to see and be with the corpse in the apartment where it laid encoffined, were permitted by Mr Whittemore to do so, and were admitted without any suspicion of foul play, and the gate left unlocked for their convenient ingress and egress. During the night, however, the visitors of the deceased contrived to steal the body away from the Hospital, and secretly conveyed it to No. 50 Orange street, to prevent a post mortem examination of the body, and also to honor it with a wake. In the morning, on examining for the corpse, it was reported non est inventus, and as having actually eloped during the night, taking its coffin with it. Search was immediately instituted, and the ranaway dead body was found in the house above named, surrounded by its friends and purloiners, and overhung with cutains of white linen, adorned with red ribbons, and other fineries, rich as the most tasty corpse could desire. The Coroner was then sent for to hold an inquest, after recovering the body back, but on arriving and discovering its comfortable condition, and the thirsty condition of its attendants, concluded to "suspend his habeas corpus," in favor of the good feelings of the company, and summoning a jury, held an inquest, who brought in a verdict that the deceased came to his death in consequence of falling againt a stone at Astor's Hotel, and after a spirited and pleasant waking, the itinerant corpse was respectably interred in its mother earth, to wake no more until the last great day.—N. Y. Sun. A long chase.-We presume that most of our readers in this County have heard of the elopement of Luther Sears, a trader in Harwich, about two months since, who took with him all his available property, leaving his creditors, to whom he was indebted several thousands, to pay themselves as they might best be able .-His companion in this flight was a young lady of Deter. It was also known that some of those creditors started off soon after in pursuit of Sears. We now learn, that one of them, Mr Wm. S. Russell of Boston, after getting upon his track at Taunton, in this State, followed him through New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and so on West to Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, &c. and finally on the night of the 6th ult., apprehended him at Peoria, in the State of Illinois, and secured him in prison there. Sears, with his fair associate, had just retired for the night; and was astonished in being thus overtaken in his career of iniquity and flight from justice .- Barnstable Patriot.

Most Melancholy Accident.-The Pittsburg Advo cate describes, in moving and eloquent language, a dreadful accident that occurred in that city on Saturday evening of last week. Miss Mary Jane Schlegel, a young lady of Washington, (Penn.) who was on a visit to her friends in Pittsburg, took a pleasure walk on that evening over Boyd's Hill, accompanied by a young associate. On returning, she descended the hill, as girls often do, in a playful mood, by "letting herself go," and before she reached the bottom, her motion became fearfully rapid und she could not stop herself until she pitched against a jutting bank of hard clay. Medical aid was immediately obtained, but she died in a few minutes. The occasion gave of course a most painful shock to all who heard of it; thus to see, as the editor eloquently remarks, "a young and blooming girl cut off in the full buoyancy of mirth and playfulness-struck to death by the very elasticity of health and youthful spirits-gathering the spring flowers to strew upon her own untimely grave.

Destructice Fire .- On Friday night last, the tavern ouse and out buildings belonging to Mr Wm. Mann, of Middlesex village, were entirely destroyed by fire. So rapid was the progress of the fire, that we are told, very few articles of furniture were saved, and one or two persons escaped very narrowly with their lives.-Two horses were burnt in the stables. We are glad to learn that Mr Mann is insured 1,400 dollars; though this will by no means cover his loss. - Montpelier Jour.

Grammatical Pun.-During the present session of the Protestant Episcopal Convention in Washington Po city, Mr Grammar, a worthy and respectable member of the church, had gratuitously accommodated a number of the delegates. This being mentioned in the hearing of a gentleman, he instantly replied, "Was it not a part of his syntax ?" (sin-tax.) - Nat. Int.

"Why," said a Prussian ecclesiastic of high rank to a celebrated actor—"why, when I and my brethren speak the truth, does no one believe us; but when you speak falsehood, every one believes you?" PHELPS—successor to BEATH & FOSTER—would intorm the public that he will continue to manufacture the different kinds of Trusses made by Messrs Beath & Foster, with improvements on the same. Having had occasion during the past season for applying many of these instruments to some of the most difficult and intricate cases of Hernia, the undersigned feels confident that no cases, however difficult, if applied to by him, will pass without receiving the most satisfactory relief. As the safety and comfort of the ruptured patient greatly depends upon the adaptation of a truss to the particular rupture it is inteaded to support, it necessarily follows that much care should be taken in selecting such a truss as is suited to the particular case. To obviate the frequent complaints made of the inefficiency of trusses, the undersigned keeps for sale an extensive assortment of the best quality, and keeps for sale an extensive assortment of the best quality, and fitted on with peculiar care. have all been made within the last four months. The Garments will be marked with the prices they can be sold for, and no abatement made.

G. E. Barton considers this method of marking the Garments at the prices they will be sold for, highly advantageous to himself and the purchaser. Sales can be made much quicker, and an exhorbitant price not asked with a view to get a moderate one.

G. E. Barton has found the former practice a very hurtful one, as the person who would pay a liberal price, invariably pays an extravagant one—and they who are grinding, generally get the goods at a trifle above the cost, on account of dislike to lose a customer.

The public will please remember that the price of each Garment will be attached to it, and no abatement made.
